

VETERANS VISIT THE 7TH.

A VOLUNTEER GUARD MOUNT WHICH WON ADMIRATION. Men Who Are Going Into Other Regiments as Officers Distinguish Themselves. Henry Everdell, chief of the volunteer guard mount, Monday evening.

After the regular guard mount, there was another guard mounted composed of volunteers. This ceremony was held to give the men who have been selected to become officers in other regiments a chance to become familiar with their work.

It was Col. Appleton's idea, and he was out on the drill ground with the music and Guard instructor Capt. Nathaniel Thurston of the Twenty-second Regiment as inspector.

John McClintock, a private in Company A, who will go to the Sixty-ninth in a few days as Adjutant, acted as Adjutant at the drill ground. William H. Connell, a corporal in the Twenty-second, was Sergeant-Major; the first officer of the guard was Private Daniel J. Dowdney of Company D, who will go to the Sixty-ninth as a first lieutenant, and the second officer was Private John H. Maxwell of Company G, who will shortly go to the Ninth Regiment as a Second Lieutenant.

The guard mount was a success, and the men who watched it clapped and cheered. When it was over they caught up the acting officers, raised them high above their heads, and carried them off the field. The acting officers were afterward summoned into Adj. Weaver's tent and complimented on the showing they had made by Gen. Thurston.

After dinner the sun came out and the crowd began to pour in. There was excitement from Staten Island by boats and railroad excursions from New York. By 3 o'clock the acting officers were again summoned into the tent, and the acting officers were afterward summoned into Adj. Weaver's tent and complimented on the showing they had made by Gen. Thurston.

The Twenty-ninth Regiment arrived about 10 o'clock, and the Twenty-ninth Regiment arrived about 10 o'clock. The Twenty-ninth Regiment arrived about 10 o'clock, and the Twenty-ninth Regiment arrived about 10 o'clock.

Kate and Mathias Guilik Were to Have Married for Germany Wedding. Kate Guilik of 153 Johnson avenue, Williamsburgh, who was engaged to be married to her husband on Thursday night, was ill yesterday to be taken from St. Catherine's Hospital.

The woman is 26 years old, and for nearly a year has been Guilik's housekeeper. When she was arrested she told the police that she expected soon to marry Guilik. The other two men she said were boarders.

Mrs. Barbara Knoll, who lives in a rear house, saw Kate Guilik in the yard on Thursday afternoon, and noticed that she looked very pale. In the evening Mrs. Knoll and the landlady, Mrs. Haven, saw the young woman coming up from the cellar.

Mrs. Haven summoned a policeman and the body was taken to the Slang street station house. Capt. Huchholz and Detectives Kennedy and Heenan went to the home and arrested Kate and the three men. At the station house the woman stoutly denied all facts that she was later admitted to by the child.

In Guilik's coat pocket was found a ticket for Germany for himself and the woman. They were to have sailed today. Guilik also had more than $200. The woman became so weak that she was taken to the hospital. The police each denied knowing anything about the child.
